DECEMBER 25, 2011 - NATIVITY OF THE LORD

Among Us!

This may not seem like the most seasonally appropriate comment, but I really dislike camping. I love the outdoors during the day, but give me a hotel bed at night. Others see camping in a much different light, but for me it involves too much dirt, too little sleep, and an unfortunate lack of electricity and running water. I don't need the Ritz, but camping is just too bare bones for me. This is why I'm so struck by the Greek translation of the verse from John's Gospel we hear at Christmas Mass during the day: "And the Word became flesh and pitched his tent among us" ( John 1:14). Pitched his tent among us. Not an RV. Not a camper. Not a hotel room. Simply a tent. Bare bones. Vulnerable. This is how God chose to come—and come among us. Not over us. Not above us. Among us. It's as completely simple and completely mysterious as that. In the weeks leading up to this wonderful day, we've certainly been surrounded by and probably participated in much feasting and purchasing and planning—some of it to excess, for sure. Many presents were bought, festive parties planned, special food prepared. It's good and right to celebrate with friends and family and to share our blessings generously with those in need. But the deepest truth of what we celebrate today is that God came among us in simplicity. There was little fuss, just a poor couple in a poor place. The divine tent was pitched in the dirt where animals slept. God came as a vulnerable, helpless child—a mystery as old as the ages, but ever new each Christmas. Celebrate it well today. Merry Christmas!

FROM THE PASTOR:

Love is the essence of Christmas: the love of God Who loves us so much that He could tolerate no distance between Himself and us, but came and dwelt among us, took on our human condition and redeemed us by sacrificing Himself so that we might be able to love Him in return and, through Him, to love one another. Let me share an example of such love, an incident in the boyhood of Robert Smith of Pennsylvania as he reported it in William Bausch's book, A World of Stories.

"It's been many years since I saw her, but in memory she's still there every Christmas season. I especially feel her presence when I receive my first Christmas card. I was only twelve years old, and Christmas was only a few days away, and the season's first blanket of white snow magnified the excitement. I dressed hurriedly because the snow out there was waiting for me. What would I do first? Build a snowman? Slide down the hill? Throw some flakes in the air and let them flutter down?

"Well, our family station wagon pulled into the driveway and Mom called me over to help her with the groceries. When we finished that, she said, 'Bob, here are Mrs. Hildebrand's groceries.' No other instructions were necessary. As far back as I could remember, Mom shopped for Mrs. Hildebrand's food and I delivered it. Our ninety-five-year-old neighbor lived alone. She was crippled with arthritis, and she could only take a few steps with a cane. I liked Mrs. Hildebrand. I enjoyed talking with her. More accurately, I enjoyed listening to her.

"She told me wonderful stories about her life, about a steepled church in the woods, horse and buggy rides on Sunday afternoons, and her family farm that had no electricity or running water. She always gave me a dime for bringing in her groceries. It got so that I would refuse only halfheartedly, knowing she would insist, and five minutes later, I would be across the street at Beyer's Candy Store. As I headed over with the grocery bags that day, I decided I wouldn't accept any money from Mrs. Hildebrand. This would be my present to her. So, impatiently, I rang the doorbell. 'Come in,' she said cheerfully; 'put the bag on the table.' I did so more hurriedly than usual because I could hear the snow calling me back outside. She sat at the table, picked up the items out of the bag and told me where to set them on the shelves.

"I usually enjoyed doing this, but it was snowing! As we continued, I began to realize how lonely she was. Her husband had died some twenty years before. She had no children, and her only living relative was a nephew in Philadelphia who never came to visit her. Nobody even called on her at Christmas. There was no tree, no presents, no stockings. For her, Christmas was just another date on the calendar. She offered me a cup of tea, which she did every time I brought in the groceries. 'Well,' I thought, 'maybe the snow could wait a bit.'

"We sat and talked about what Christmas was like when she was a child. Together, we traveled back in time, and an hour passed before I knew. 'Well, Bob,' she said, 'you must be wanting to play outside in the snow,' as she reached for her purse, fumbling for the right coin. 'No, no, Mrs Hildebrand. I can't take your money this time. You can use it for more important things,' I insisted. She looked at me and smiled. 'What more important thing could I use this money for, if not to give it to a friend at Christmastime?' She placed a whole quarter in my hand. I tried to give it back, but she would have none of it.

"I hurried out the door and ran over to Beyer's Candy Store with my fortune. I had no idea what to buy—a comic book, a chocolate soda, ice cream. And then I spotted a Christmas card with an old country church on its cover. It was just like the church Mrs. Hildebrand described to me, and I knew I had to buy it. I handed Mr. Beyer my quarter and borrowed a pen to sign my name. 'For your girlfriend?' Mr. Beyer teased. I started to say no, but quickly changed my mind. 'Well, yeah,' I said. 'I guess so.' As I walked across the street with my gift, I was so proud of myself. I felt like I'd just hit a home run in the World Series.

"I rang Mrs. Hildebrand's doorbell. 'Hello, Mrs. Hildebrand,' I said, and handed her my card. 'Merry Christmas.' Her hands trembled as she slowly opened the envelope, studied the card, and began to cry. 'Thank you. Thank you very much,' she said in almost a whisper. 'Merry Christmas to you.'

"On a cold and windy afternoon a few weeks later, the ambulance arrived next door. My mom said they found Mrs. Hildebrand in bed. She had died peacefully in her sleep. Her night table light was still on when they found her and it illumined a solitary Christmas card with an old country church on the cover."
